10 a threaded pin protruding substantially perpendicular from the top surface of the base which has a distal end that extends through the slot of the first support member, and a threaded knob which is threadably mated to the threaded pin and which in a disengaged mode allows the first support member to be slid in relation to the base, and in an engaged mode wherein the knob is rotated down on the pin so as to compress the second leg of the first support member against the top surface of the base, prevents the first support member from sliding in relation to the base.
